British Museum, London

Saturday 22 October 2011: 11.00 am - 5.00 pm

at: University of London, Hughes-Parry Hall, Cartwright Gardens, London, WC1H 9EF

Many people believe there cannot possibly be any more ancient tombs to be found in Egypt. Would you be surprised to learn that this is not true? There really are many more tombs, graves and mummies waiting to be discovered!

If you are interested in Egyptian archaeology and want to find out

How we know where to find burials in Egypt?

How we excavate and record them?

What techniques are used to examine burials?

What happens to the mummies and objects we find?

then this introductory and fun study day will answer these questions and more!
You can also test your knowledge in a fun practical session!

Cost: £40 Includes afternoon refreshments

Please note: places are limited booking closing date:
6 October 2011
